

Sakuragawa

My favorite iris is “Sakuragawa”. I saw Sakuragawa when I felt nostalgia. For instance, Sakuragawa’s petals look like clothing. Especially, the mixture of light purple and white is elegant. I went to neighborhood shrine festival with my friend when I was elementary school student. I saw that a lot of put on clothing girls. I think that clothing can be beautiful of more girls.

Sakuragawa is belonging to Edo group. Therefore, Sakuragawa’s petals are drooping to central. It looks like type of bug. As if I saw Sakuragawa’s petals when I was child that I felt using writing brush for making flower.

For me, appreciating flowers is a moment when I feel truly happy, and I feel equally happy when looking at the Sakuragawa. Compared to other flowers, the Sakuragawa gives me the rainy season view before summer.

Ryohei Kobayashi
Graduate school of Agriculture
Tamagawa University
1st grade of master’s course