

紫宸殿 Shisinden

Your attention will be glued to this deep purple robe even if it just gets into the corner of your eye. This flower has no gorgeous frills, flashy colors, or luxurious patterns.

However, this leisurely figure and large drape make one think of the figure of a noble person. And the golden light that shines within it is like a truly virtuous and noble person oozing out to the surface without showing off his splendor.

Shishinden is a building where the emperor holds ceremonies, and its name comes from the Chinese Forbidden City "Shikinjou" and the star "Sibien", which represents the Emperor.

The appearance of this flower reminds us of the attire and authority of the imperial family, as well as its long history.

Sakura Sugita
1st grade of master course
Graduate school of Agriculture,
Tamagawa University

